This Navajo—English dictionary is presented with the hope that the vocabulary may be of aid to Navajos who are learning English as well as non-Navajos who are interested in acquiring some knowledge of the Navajo language. The authors have listed Navajo vocabulary and have attempted to provide definitions in simple, easily understood English.

Grateful acknowledgment is made to all the people who contributed their knowledge and time to the development of this dictionary.
VOWELS:
The vowels have continental values. They are as follows, the first example being a Navajo word, the second the closest approximation to that sound in English. Example:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Navajo Word</th>
<th>English Approximation</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>a gad</td>
<td>father</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>e 'e'e'aah</td>
<td>met</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>i sis</td>
<td>sit</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>o hosh</td>
<td>note</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Vowels may be either long or short in duration, the long duration vowel being indicated by a doubling of the letter. This never affects the quality of the vowel, except that the long duration i is always pronounced as in the English word see. Examples:

- sis (belt) the vowel is short.
- siziliz (my belt) the second vowel sound is of long duration.

Vowels with a hook (q) beneath the letters are nasalized. This means that some of the breath passes through the nose when a sound is produced. All vowels following n are nasalized though not marked. Examples:

- bizees (his, her wart)
- ‘ashijh (salt)
- tsinaabqqs (wagon)
- bijh (deer)

A little mark above the letter (ó), indicates that the voice rises on that letter. Examples:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Letter</th>
<th>Example</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>ni</td>
<td>(you)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>'azee'</td>
<td>(medicine)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nilj</td>
<td>(he is)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>doo</td>
<td>(not)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

When only the first element of a long vowel has a mark above it the tone falls. If only the last element is marked the tone rises. Examples:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Navajo Word</th>
<th>English Approximation</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>a</td>
<td>(short, low) as a in father</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>q</td>
<td>(short, high)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>aq</td>
<td>(short, low, nasal)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>qq</td>
<td>(short, high, nasal)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

DIPHTHONGS:
The diphthongs are as follows:

- ai hai (winter)
- aai shinaal (my elder brother)
- ao daolyé (they are called)
- aao 'aao' (yes)
- e (that one)
- eii 'ádaat'ëii (that which are)
- oi deesdoi (it is warm, weather)
- ooi Tséhootsooó (Ft. Defiance, Arizona)
CONSONANTS:

(*) this is the most common consonantal sound in Navajo, and is called a glottal stop. It sounds like the hiatus between the two elements of the English exclamation oh! oh! and hunh unh. In actual speech the difference between Johnnie yearns and Johnnie earns, is that the latter has a glottal closure between the two words. More examples:

ha'aaah (east)
'á'dán (a hole in the ground)
'abe' (milk)
yáát'éeh (it is good)
b báah (bread) — like p in spot ch chizh (firewood) — like ch in church

x yiiyis'ní (he killed him)
y yá (sky) — like y in yellow z zas (snow) — like z in zeora zh bizhi' (his name) — like s in pleasure

* h — represents the sound of ch in German ich, as well as that of h in English word have. Ordinarily, both of the sounds are written h, but when h follows it is necessary to distinguish the resulting sh sequence from the digraph sh. This is accomplished by substitution of x for the h. Thus: yiiyis'ní (he killed him) for yiiyishí, X is also employed to distinguish between such forms as tísso and títso, the latter being more strongly aspirated than the former.

The document contains a collection of words and phrases in a language other than English. It appears to be a list of words, possibly in a local language, with some definitions or notes following each entry. The text is formatted in a way that suggests it might be a glossary or a list of vocabulary terms. Without knowing the specific language or context, it's challenging to provide a precise translation or explanation. If the language and context are known, a more accurate interpretation could be provided.
