Dissertation Writing & Editing

Goal Tracker

You followed your dreams all the way to a doctoral program - a dream that most people (even you on some days) believe is too difficult to accomplish, perhaps even impossible. How do you accomplish the impossible? By dividing the dream into small sets of attainable goals. The most important action you can take is to keep moving forward.

- ◇ Make progress every day.
- ◇ 15 minutes of outlining, writing, or editing is progress.
- ◇ If progress every day is impossible, make progress every week.
- ◇ Track your work.
- ◇ Take note of when you are most productive.
- ◇ Inspire yourself.

Set SMART Goals.
Specific.
Measurable.
Achievable.
Reportable.
Time Bound.

Specific

The more specificity in your goal, the better able to are to focus on your writing.

- ◇ What do you want to accomplish?
- ◇ What chapter are you working on?
- ◇ What section within that chapter are you working on?
- ◇ What subsection within the section within the chapter are you working on?

S

Measurable

How will you know if you accomplished your goal? It must be quantifiable in order to make a determination. How will you measure your progress?

- ◇ By the number of words you write or edit?
- ◇ By the number of pages you write or edit?
- ◇ By the section or subsection you write or edit?

M

Achievable

Remember, this is a time-bound goal. Can you accomplish your goal in the amount of time you can set aside on this day? How realistic is your goal from where you are starting to where you want to end? Keep two things in mind: 1) when you begin, you'll probably overestimate what you can do on any given day, and 2) after you practice writing goals and establish a writing habit that helps you focus quickly, the likelier you are to set achievable writing goals.

A

Reportable

The purpose for establishing a measurable goal is to assess the progress made towards your goal.

- ◇ Did you meet your goal?
- ◇ How many words did you write or edit?
- ◇ How many pages did you write or edit?
- ◇ How far towards your goal did you reach?

R

Time Bound

Work. Family. Life. Sanity. They all take time. How much time today can you devote to writing?

T Advice from long-time academic writers and writing coaches is to write for short amounts of time - so think of the dissertation as a daily run, not a one-day ultramarathon. And think of writing as a muscle - the more you flex it, the more conditioned it will be.
